Best Medium List

121 BC offers a slick wine list of just under 100 wines that pulses with on-trend alternative, low intervention wines from some of Italy's leading winemakers. Macerated Whites and Natural Wines have their own categories marked for those who enjoy a little wildness to their wines. This all-Italian wine listing plays no favourites so expect to see a full range of styles from almost every Italian wine region, from Sicily and Puglia down south the Friuli and the Veneto up north. The selection of aged reds includes some delightful Barolos.

An excellent list. Opens with quality options 'by the glass' and is then a cavalcade of stellar selections. An amazing array of DRC the highlight, but for mere mortals, cracking white burgundies, fine collection of Bordeaux, plenty of fine choices from Australia and New Zealand and the opportunity to sample the local wines. The whiskies are especially noteworthy with a good range of rums and other spirits.

A stunning 2000-plus wine list largely devoted to showcasing the wines of one country is a rarity. Last year's China Wine List of the Year - Hong Kong, Macau and Taiwan - continues to show why it is among the country's best with a stunning selection of wines. Wines by glass highlight classic producers such as Brezza, Terlano and rising stars like Graci. Half bottles go for quality all the way and include Lynch-Bages and Lascombes. The French vie for the diner's attention, especially in the Champagne selection, but Italophiles have much to celebrate as they work their way through the list. Multiple vintages of top Italian wines from top makers makes the choice all that bit harder.

With access to one of the great wine lists of China, 8 1/2 Otto e Mezzo, Shanghai, works hard to present a different wine list to that of its sister restaurants. More wines by the glass are offered under Coravin here increasing your wine drinking options, especially with aged reds, and keep an eye out for The Sommeliers Selection with 34 top-shelf wines selected. The Italians are the stars - especially the heart-stopping depth of the Barolo list - but diners may find themselves eyeing some attractive alternatives from the rest of the world, led by France.

By name and menu, Brasserie is French-inspired but like a number of modern-day interpreters it chooses to look to the wines of France and beyond for its wine list. It is not strictly French in style but embraces the world from a Portuguese Malvasia blend and German Riesling Kabinett to a Tuscan Cabernet and Spanish Tempranillo. Big names, many familiar, fill the pages although it is still possible to be surprised (a Riverina sparkling, anyone!).

This is a tiny list, in a tiny 20 seat bar, but rarely do we find a restaurant with such personality, such clear focus. Brut! is a glorious find, and focusses on largely organic, biodynamic producers and natural wines. If wines with personality paired with creative plates are your style, then Brut! is for you. The dark wood, moody textured walls and overall Parisian bar vibes have definitely got us bumping this right up the must-see list.

Award-winning sommelier Feifei Liu has compiled a brilliant international list which is guaranteed to satisfy any discerning wine lover. The selection is thoughtful and considered with a mix of big names and lesser-known jewels. The use of Coravin allows premium wines to be served by-the-glass, and there are also some excellent 'wine flights' to try. Tasting notes are available for the featured wines, and wines in the main list are grouped by style to encourage exploration of different styles.

A significant proportion of this list is devoted to an amazing array of whiskies which will delight fans of this spirit. This then extends across a range of other spirits, liqueurs, cognacs, Chinese spirits and more, as well. A fine collection of champagnes and then a focus on French wines, with a sprinkling of gems, such as Giaconda, Vega Sicilia and Kistler. The highlight of this list is the extensive Bordeaux offerings and DRC.

To take a wander through the 17,000-strong Don Alfonso wine list is to enter a different wine world, one where your dream wine and vintage can probably be found (alas, probably not at a dream price), and to search out multiple vintages of the world's most celebrated wines from France, Italy and beyond. It can be exhaustive but those with the time and the money will be in heaven. And unlike many lists, Don Alfonso takes dessert just as seriously as aperitifs with 21 pages of fabulous dessert wines to ponder before diners finally call it a night.

A new name on the Macao restaurant scene that has devoted its wine list entirely to the wines of Portugal. It's a bold move and one that is bound to please. The country's indigenous grape varieties are showcased beautifully right across the list from Alvarinho and Loureiro to superstars Touriga Nacional and the Tinta family of reds. Styles tend towards youth and freshness but there are some older gems to explore, too. And, of course, the grand finale is an irresistible array of fortified wines. Some diners might even be inclined to start their wine journey right there.

The wine brief is to match Gosto's Western-Macanese-Portuguese cuisine. Not an easy task and one that is taken up with gusto at Gosto. The wine world opens its doors from Australian Chardonnay to Chilean Sauvignon Blanc, Beaujolais (so versatile at food matching) to aged Italian Nebbiolos and everything in between, with Gosto is eager to explore the possibilities. You have to applaud a list that on the one hand offers Chateau Margaux from 1978 to 2008 and Paolo Scavino Barolo from 1988 to 2010 and is still capable of surprising with emerging superstars such as Donnafugata, Burn Cottage and closer to home, Helan Qing Xue.

By the glass: 195 - 485 HKD

By any reckoning this is a stunningly comprehensive wine listing attuned to the great wine producers of the world. For those who wish to indulge in their greatest wine drinking fantasies, begin here with open access to the Dom Perignon Enotheque Vintage collection back to 1959, among a host of top Champagnes. Multiple vintages and single vineyard stars from all the brightest stars of Burgundy, Bordeaux, Rhone Valley, California, Piedmont, Ribera del Duero, Australia and beyond are on display. The devotion to German Rieslings is among one of many highlights in this 136-page wine list.

Wine prices: $$$

By the glass: 88 - 788 RMB

The younger Shanghai-based sister restaurant to L'Atelier de Joel Robuchon offers a relatively smaller wine list compared to its Hong Kong sibling, but it remains extraordinarily comprehensive. In addition, it benefits from the professionalism and care of Head Sommelier, Arneis Wu, who was named Mainland China's 2018 Outstanding Sommelier of the Year. He delivers a list that excites, offering the rarity of Chateau Talbot of La Fleur Petrus by the glass, or one of the more comprehensive vintage Champagne listings in the country. Burgundy and Bordeaux heavy hitters are definitely the stars, but there's also the opportunity to try quality Chinese wines such as a Ningxia Riesling, or one of a number of Chinese Cabernet Sauvignons or Pinot Noirs. Keep room for a dessert wine, the list will impress.

One moment this extensive wine list is employed to match Chinese food (La Chine) and the next it is presented with an international buffet (Le Buffet Parisian). It is versatile enough to do both cuisines proud. International in nature, the wine selection covers Old and New World varieties and producer styles with attractive, bright medium-bodied wines by the glass, an impressive array of Champagnes from the major houses complemented nicely by some quiet, underrated white stars from France and Portugal. Then comes the grand finale of seriously good Bordeaux Cabernets, amongst others, and Port and single malts to close. What more could you ask for?

Le Comptoir de Pierre Gagnaire shows us an This is an exceptional list. This is a classy selection of wines and very well put together. All of the greats are here - Gaja, Giacosa, Prunotto, Latour, Lafite, Chapoutier, DRC, Prieur, Drouhin, Salon, Bollinger, Egly-Ouriet... the list goes on.. An impressive offering of older wines, particularly in the Cote de Beaune and Bordeaux reds sections - this is to be expected. The option of wines under Coravin opens up an appealing selection of wines available by the taste or glass. The wine and food are in perfect symbiosis; the only question is, where to start.

Looking for advice on the best wines to enjoy with sushi, grilled fish or wagyu? In a novel presentation, Nadaman Central HK matches its wine styles with helpful food hints, thus a Swiss Pinot Noir from Gantenbein matches Kaiseki dinner, a Barossa Valley Grenache blend from Torbreck is recommended with wagyu, etc. Nadaman's Japanese menu is a complex field of flavours which is nicely matched by the wine list's selection of small and medium wine producers from around the world. Alternative grape varieties including a barrel-aged Muscat from Japan offer a lively mix alongside a listing of poised, established quality winemakers and wines. The cocktail and spirit menu is equally different in its presentation with an elegant Art Deco vibe.

Nadaman Kowloon announces its credentials early with an extensive listing of shochu distilled spirits and sake to get everyone ready for the following Japanese food and wine experience. The Japanese theme continues with a Japanese white and red wine available by the glass supported by small producers from both the Old and New Wine Worlds like Salomon, Amisfield and Singlefile who will definitely be new finds to many a diner. The listing is not big in number but offers quality all the way and plays a strong supporting role in providing wines totally in sync with the Japanese cuisine offered.

While this is a wine list beautifully in tune with its seafood calling, it must be said that it is so supremely confident and extensive in its wine selection that it would suit many cuisines. It is not easily pigeon-holed. From the incredible attention to detail with information and tasting notes on 700-odd wines (not to mention spirits and beers) through to an extensive tour of the world of wine in 60 glasses, to covering so many styles and producers - old and new - including a Chinese Chardonnay and a Central Otago Pinot Noir rarely seen outside New Zealand, you know you have found an exciting world-class wine list.

With the considerable Galaxy wine resources at its disposal - and sharing the same list as Fook Lam Moon, its sister restaurant - Pak Loh Chiu Chow dives in at the deep end with its super impressive wine listing that includes some of the great wines of the world. But while it is possible to enjoy a 1982 Chateau Petrus or a 1961 Chateau Haut Brion, the list is also about broadening your wine horizons and exploring some lesser-known regions and grape varieties. Maybe a Melon de Bourgogne from the Loire, Austrian Gruner Veltliner or Portuguese syrah. This is also an ideal opportunity for many to learn more about Chinese red wines with half a dozen quality makers offered.

An exemplary list. Eschews the overload approach to ensure every selection is quality. Wines have been sourced from leading producers from the great regions of the world. Ramonet, Kistler, Dujac, Gaja, Donnhoff, Duval and so many more. The jewel in the crown is an amazing set of numerous vintages across the DRC range. Wonderful.

This is a well compiled list that would horrify those somms for whom a list must be obscure and weird. It is full of big names, well known names and wines which will make customers feel very comfortable - nothing at all wrong with that. Guigal, Krug, Jadot, Chapoutier, Vega Sicilia, Wynns, Leeuwin Estate, Moet, Egon Muller. What is not to like? In the end, Bordeaux is the star, including some excellent Firsts.

Based in the luxurious Wynn Palace, this is a stunning listing of the great wines of the world - in many cases offering several vintages to tempt the discerning with deep pockets. There is an extensive listing by the glass of excellent wines: champagne lovers are well catered for, especially at the luxury end of the market. It is an international collection strongest in the classic wines of France but offering outstanding whites and reds from great producers around the world. It is a list that has depth rather than breadth offering many vintages of DRC, Petrus, Lafite, Haut Brion, Rayas, Clos Sainte Hune, Hundred Acre and more. The sake range also impresses.

An unusual introduction to this wine list has a selection of top wines to try as recommended by the T'ang Court sommelier and a host of international wine critics. Australian and France dominates and prices can be high, but it's worth a look for the insight it offers into this high-end wine list devoted in large part to some of the world's most exciting, premium quality wines. It's an international study in wines, something you can partake from the excellent wines by the glass selection, or delve in deeper into the list. France is the star but Italy, the US and Australia offer real choice in styles and vintages. Chinese spirits and Sake are also well covered.

With the considerable Galaxy wine resources at its disposal - and sharing the master list as other restaurants such as Fook Lam Moon - this extensive listing dives in at the deep end with a super impressive wine selection that includes some of the great wines of the world. But while it is possible to enjoy a 1982 Petrus or a 1961 Haut Brion, it is also about broadening your wine horizons and exploring some lesser-known regions and grape varieties. For this, look to the 25 wines by the glass (including by Coravin). This is also the perfect opportunity to learn more about Chinese red wines with a number of quality makers offered.
