Wine list by Vincent Kwong

Wine on list: 99 (29 by the glass)

Wine prices: $$

By the glass: 80 - 270 HKD

This established Italian favourite has had a makeover in its swish new premises though it still has the same great Italian food and slick wine list. A set of fabulous cocktails will get one's evening off to a terrific start, or if you prefer beer, there's the boutique brewer BAV from Veneto. The by-the-glass selection offers good spread from around Italy, including a strong set of 'macerated' wines from Friuli plus a great selection of reds. The main list is a smart compilation of around a hundred bottles which transverses the country and has a diverse varietal mix. At the back, you'll find a small set of rare wines and some classy digestifs to close.

28 HuBin Rd presents diners with a classy wine list to complement the sophisticated, authentic food from Hangzhou, Suzhou and Huaiyang. Beggar's Chicken and Dongpo Pork are some of the favourites on the menu, and there are quality wines to match. Top producers grace the pages from Penfolds, By Farr, Grosset and St Hallett from Australia and Inniskillin from Canada, plus there are icons from the Americas such as Opus One from the Napa Valley and Don Melchor from Chile. Also great to see labels like Silver Heights from China, as well an extensive selection of Chinese liquor and Shaoxing Yellow Wine. France and Italy shine with a wide range of classic wines to tempt the most discerning connoisseur.

Best Sparkling Wine List

Breathtaking is the only word to describe this phenomenal listing of the great wines of the world. It is like a library of all the wines you want to drink but never knew where to find. They are all here, in the finely tuned compendium of wine. Italian wines stand proud in all their glory. Each region shines with its signature varietals and producers. The collection from Barbaresco is outstanding, and then there are the Barolos: a mesmerising selection spanning eleven pages, including verticals from the best producers. Tuscany is another highlight, especially the numerous Brunello di Montalcinos. Aside from Italy, France is particularly strong in the classic regions of Burgundy and Bordeaux, and there is a sweep from the New World too. This is an exceptional list with hidden treasures for all.

Best Hotel Restaurant List

While this has always been an impressive list, it has grown in size and complexity under the watchful eye of experienced sommelier Jonathan Morán. The restaurant has long been renowned for its excellent selection of Italian wines, though the recent additions launch it into the stratosphere. The Barolo selection is mind-blowing, not to mention the superb range of Brunello di Montalcino, the shimmering set of Super-Tuscans and the contemporary selection from Sicily. There's been a significant expansion of the French category, with the listings of Champagne, Burgundy and Bordeaux genuinely outstanding. Add to the mix an excellent set of spirits, impressive wines-by-the-glass, a large number of half bottles and magnums, and what you have is a world-class, sophisticated list that will satisfy the most discerning wine connoisseur.

There is so much to love about the wine list at 8½ Otto e Mezzo Bombana Shanghai that it is hard to know where to start. It must be said that the wine-by-the-glass list is stunning and one could choose from this alone and go home satisfied, as the use of Coravin allows for delights like old Barolo and Brunello di Montalcino to be poured. If you want some direction, the sommelier's selection upfront is a stunning subset of cellared treats. Though it is the main list which is thoroughly impressive, with its speciality being the wines of Italy in all their glory. The prestige wines of France are also featured, and there is a moderate set from the rest of the world to delight new world fans.

Amelia in Hong Kong is where you want to be. Hip and leaning towards the natural, this list has a wild selection of well chosen producers that span most major winegrowing areas. This list is the opportunity to explore and discover - you will not be disappointed. There's a great sherry selection by the glass, the Coravin system should you want something a bit older and a bit finer, there's a broad selection of older vintages available by the bottle, and we haven't even started listing the specific producers yet... This is a thoughtful, cleverly curated list that does not only satisfy the wine drinkers... the range of spirits, cocktails and non-alcoholic beverages is extensive to say the least. Excellent.

Angelini is part of the Shangri-La restaurant group, so immediately expectations rise. The emphasis is on the big names of the Italian wine scene and the wines that got them there. Classic styles and back vintages are key, and while the rest of the world is covered lightly this list is Italian at heart. Few diners will be able to tear themselves away from the selection of wines by the glass and, in particular, the gems to be found in the Coravin Private Cellar including Ornellaia, Sassicaia and Solaja.

For those who like the finer things in life; a bar that serves only Champagne and high end spirits is surely your speed. While this list is limited in its breadth of styles, it dives deep into Champagne, and even deeper into spirits. The packages on the menu are an interesting twist: titled 'Vintage', 'Unique', 'Rare' and 'Purity'. 'Rare' will deliver you two bottles of Dom Perignon 2009, a fruit platter, spicy chicken wings and two bottles of Voss mineral water.... an oddly attractive combination if we do say so.

Robuchon au Dôme and Casa Don Alfonso, at the Grand Hotel Lisboa in Macau, have access to the 17000 strong cellar that is under the custodianship of acclaimed wine director Paul Lo.

The listing is nothing short of phenomenal, and it includes some of the rarest wines in the world. You'll find old vintages of prestige Champagne, outstanding Burgundies (there are thirty-five pages of white Burgundy alone and almost double that for red), century-old Vouvray, an extraordinary collection of Alsatian white and a mind-blowing collection of German riesling with almost 200 pages of wines. Red Bordeaux is breathtaking, and the collection of American reds has depth like no other list. Italy and Spain are similarly impressive, as is the set of dessert wines, particularly the vertical of Château d'Yquem. If you love old wine, this place is sheer bliss.

By the glass: 78 - 358 RMB

A no nonsense list, which might appear short but is jampacked with some seriously appealing wines. Stars like Latour 1995 and Rousseau Clos St Jacques 2002 are among many and there are plenty of wines suitable for every-day drinking as well. The list is strongly French focused, especially Burgundy, but there is plenty of support.

Gli Azzurri in Chengdu starts off with an extensive offerings of spirits, beers and cocktails. As the selection moves into wine, it becomes clear that the Italian cuisine is complemented by a decent array of Italian wines. The producers featured are not just limited to Italy, and are in the main, small to medium sized wineries with appearances from some of the greats from Bordeaux, Burgundy and beyond. A compelling list.

Wine is taken seriously at Garden Court, and because of this, the quality of the offering is high. It is the extra details which set this list aside from so many others, for example, all the wines in the by-the-glass program are served from the enomatic, ensuring freshness and correct serving temperature. There is also a good selection of bright, fresh wines as well as wines with age. It is an international list, with an excellent selection of premium white wine. Though, one of the real highlights is the large number of high-quality French reds, particularly those from Bordeaux. Another strength is the quality selection of port and a lengthy set of Chinese spirits. Diners can select wine from this list with confidence.

Being part of the Galaxy chain allows this restaurant to dive into the extensive wine resources of the group. The wine list at Gosto, mirrored by that at Terrazza and Pak Loh Chiu Chow, has increased in size to almost 1200 wines, and within the pages lie an international selection of labels with strengths in the new world as well as classic European regions. As well as the big names, well-chosen smaller producers add depth and interest. There is an exciting selection by the glass, and there's also an impressive number of half bottles and magnums, particularly from Bordeaux.

A list which delivers quality choices from all great regions of the world, focusing on many top makers – no favourites here! Great supporting list of spirits and more. Local Chinese offerings catered for. For me, the highlight, noting the use of Coravin, is the selection of 'by the glass'. Duval, Chave, Alvaro Palacios, Ornellaia, Quintarelli and much more.

Lai Heen at the Ritz-Carlton in Guangzhou presents a premium wine list that complements the Michelin star cuisine on offer. The selection spans many wine growing regions around the world, with a particular (although not exclusive) focus on France. There is a large representation of premium Italian wines. Names such as Gaja, Ornellaia, Bouchard, Haut-Brion and the Pauillac trifecta of Latour, Lafite and Mouton are peppered throughout the list. A veritable who's who of big name producers. Among all of this, there is a large variety of value wines on the list that represent far more affordable options.

Lai Heen at the Ritz-Carlton in Macau houses a sensitively curated collection of super premium wines from around the world. Going one step better, the list features a number of 'producer highlights', which deep dive into winemakers and regions, giving us an even more detailed picture of the great wines of the world. The Bordeaux selection is excellent, as expected. The selection of wines by the glass pays homage to the list beyond, where many wonders are revealed with careful exploration.

A phenomenal listing exceeding 3400 wines from the best producers that the world has to offer. The strengths are so vast that it is impossible to list them all. However, highlights include the extraordinary set of vintage Champagnes, the glittering Burgundy and Bordeaux collection and the outstanding exposé of German wine. All major wine styles of the world are represented, and prices are exceedingly fair. There is also a good selection by the glass. The list picked up the top award in 2014 and it has been on the continual improve ever since.

As a past winner of China's Wine List of the Year, this list has already proved itself as one of the great places in the world to drink prestige wine. Though it never fails to impress with its stunning listing by-the-glass, the elegant Champagne listing, the top class Burgundies and extraordinary Bordeaux. It also pays due attention to the Loire, Alsace, Rhone Valley, Germany and Piedmont. Its focus and its targeted selection of quality producers are its strengths. The choice of sweet wines and spirits is also impressive.

We love the 'sommelier's selection' on the wine list at Ming Jia in Qingdao. It provides a list of suggested food and wine matches, taking the work out of choosing. The list beyond features a slew of great international producers, with many far flung regions represented. Morton's Grille shows us a user-friendly list of wines. The restaurant has an American theme, so the wine list rightly follows in this New World line. Big names such as Dominus and Opus One rub shoulders with the wines from Stag's leap and Kendall-Jackson, Robert Mondavi and Beringer - all Napa Valley big guns. There is a solid sprinkling of Australia and New Zealand in there as well.

People flock to Morton's of Chicago, Beijing, for excellent quality steak and fine wine! They specialise in wines from the US and Italy, but they also offer a premium range from the classic regions of France. There are some fine examples from the southern hemisphere as well, especially Australia. There is also a solid selection by the glass, plus some half bottles, and a magnificent collection of magnums. But it is the Californian cabernet sauvignon collection which is particularly alluring and is what sets them apart from many other establishments.

Morton's has a successful formula which its regular diners love. The steaks are superb, and after twenty-plus years in business, they know which wines suit both their food and their clientele. They put a worthy spotlight on the red wines of America, with a premium selection of Cabernet Sauvignon, merlot and pinot noir. There are some top reds from France, Italy, Spain, Australia and South America, as well as a sommelier's selection upfront where you will find some real treats. The white selection is smaller, though no less enticing.

Calling all red wines lovers. Morton's steakhouse in Shanghai celebrates full-bodied red wines in all their glory. It is a magnificent selection, led by the wines of California. Italy and France are highlights, as are the wines of Australia and South America. There is also a pleasing selection of Chinese wine. There is a wonderful collection of wines with age, so there is a fair chance that you will be able to find your favourite wine at its peak. There is also a worthy collection of white wine, though red wine is the absolute star.

Punch Room at the Shanghai Edition Hotel shows us a modern and edgy take on an international list. At all opportunities the wines selected are slightly left of centre, making this a highly engaging, compelling read. The Champagne list makes a strong start, touching lightly upon a wide array of producers - spanning both the established and the growers. The wines in the list beyond follow this theme, and portray a 'full colour illustration' of both emerging and established wineries from across the globe, from an exciting cross-section of vintages. Producers such as Gravner sit alongside old Riojas and 1er Cru Savignys. They use Coravin to keep the wine options fresh and exciting. Extensive collection of spirits. Another astoundingly good curation of wines from the Shanghai Edition - impressive.

Qu Lang Hua shows us the ability of a small list to hit the mark with well selected wines that suit the cuisine offering. For the size that it is, this list sensitively covers many vinous bases. We liked the sparkling offering, which, in seven wines includes prosecco, Chinese sparkling rice wine, Japanese sparkling Sake (a first for us), Chandon China, a grower champagne and an established house. Impressive. The list continues in this fashion, rounding out with a page selection of Chinese rice wine and liquor, and sake. Perhaps the wines by the glass are too brief for a higher rating, but we liked what we saw otherwise.

Just what you would expect from a Ritz-Carlton bar in Macau: a full-throttle wine list of epic proportions mostly with a tab that you'd expect. By the glass, there are three Champagne, white wines at affordable prices, and a range of reds of good quality. The list is strong with Champagne, the classic wines of France's Bordeaux and Burgundy. There's many delightful wines from other parts of the world, Italy, Spain, Portugal, Australia and New Zealand. Some impressive Chinese spirits, too.

River Drunk at the Wanda Reign On The Bund in Shanghai houses a brilliant list. It expertly navigates the premium wines of the world, and has some older vintages on offer for added interest. Starting with a very impressive selection of Chinese liquor and rice wine, the list cascades into Champagne and beyond. The wines offered by the glass are a good insight into the joys of the main list beyond. We particularly enjoyed the sommelier selection at the beginning; this is concise but engaging, and suggests a compelling little lineup of wines to try. An impressive offering overall.

Best Luxury Fine Wine Cellar List

Robuchon au Dôme and Casa Don Alfonso, at the Grand Hotel Lisboa in Macau, have access to the 17000 strong cellar that is under the custodianship of acclaimed wine director Paul Lo. The listing is nothing short of phenomenal, and it includes some of the rarest wines in the world. You'll find old vintages of prestige Champagne, outstanding Burgundies (there are thirty-five pages of white Burgundy alone and almost double that for red), century-old Vouvray, an extraordinary collection of Alsatian white and a mind-blowing collection of German riesling with almost 200 pages of wines. Red Bordeaux is breathtaking, and the collection of American reds has depth like no other list. Italy and Spain are similarly impressive, as is the set of dessert wines, particularly the vertical of Château d'Yquem. If you love old wine, this place is sheer bliss.

Roof at the Shanghai Edition Hotel falls in line with the other great dining options here and shows us a modern and edgy take on an international list. At all opportunities the wines selected are slightly left of centre, making this a highly engaging, compelling read. The Champagne list makes a strong start, touching lightly upon a wide array of producers - spanning both the established and the growers. The wines in the list beyond follow this theme, and portray a 'full colour illustration' of both emerging and established wineries from across the globe, from an exciting cross-section of vintages. Producers such as Gravner sit alongside old Riojas and 1er Cru Savignys. They use Coravin to keep the wine options fresh and exciting. Extensive collection of spirits. Another astoundingly good curation of wines from the Shanghai Edition - impressive.

A list to savour. Far from the largest array one will encounter but it has been compiled to match the cuisine. This Japanese-focused establishment has excellent whites, notably Riesling, and reds, such as Pinot Noir, which will work wonderfully. Enough bigger reds to satisfy those who would prefer that road. The highlight, however, is a world class selection of Sake, crafted by someone very knowledgeable.

The wine list at Steak Universe is an interesting one. It is largely focused on the value wines from great estates from around the world. It then dives headlong into some of the most expensive and premium wines on the market. They have Domaine de la Romanee Conti available by the glass (via Coravin) for example. An impressive feat, and not many steakhouses around the world can claim that. Otherwise were were delighted to see the support of some domestic Chinese wines on the list, and a broad array of styles and price ranges. Unsurprisingly, the Bordeaux selection is very strong. Steak Universe by little somms, is not your average steakhouse. Bravo!

Best Listing of Chinese Spirits

This is a compact international list which favours the breadth of its reach over the depth of its treatment of any areas except France. What distinguishes this list is the care that is taken with its choices at all price points. Burgundy, Bordeaux and Champagne are given the most comprehensive treatment while there is a good selection of the wines of Piedmont and Tuscany. As well as this, there are good choices from around the world of wines. The collection of spirits, especially Japanese whisky and Chinese Moutai, is impressive.

Best Chinese Restaurant List

This is an impressive international list, with a strong French accent, where the quality of the wines never falters. It's a highly individual Champagne list, a comprehensive dance around the regions of France, selecting the finest bottles in each case and with sufficient depth to please the most discerning diner. The collection from Italy, the USA, Australia and China will attract many but there's plenty more great bottles. The moutai selection goes back to 1978.

The highlight of the Japanese restaurant, Yamazato, is a very good collection of sake. We'd love to see more commentary in English and more sake by the glass or pot. It's an international wine list which focus on modestly-priced wines from France, and around Europe (especially Italy and Spain), the USA, Australia as well as China and Japan. For those wanting to splurge there are some impressive French reds and Champagnes. This is a restaurant which clearly knows its customers and gives them what they want.

Unusually, this wine list comes by itself with no food menu attached. As such, it's a free-wheeling look around the wine world, mainly focusing on the everyday styles but occasionally going deeper. Some names will leap from the pages: Felton Road, Thibault Liger-Belair, Chateau de Beaucastel, Ridge, Sandrone, etc. An icon listing towards the back of the list will definitely have appeal if you are after something special.

Wine lists need not be vast to be charming, and the list at Yi Long Court is an excellent example of this. Fine Champagne, whites and reds by-the-glass. By the bottle, there is a curated international selection with top names and a good spread of styles. Quality is high, ensuring a satisfying wine experience. Though if you were keen to have more choice, a comprehensive master list is available on request.

This is a classy new restaurant in Pudong with the greatest strength is in its small but classy collection of reds from Bordeaux and Champagne. There are modestly priced reds from France, Italy, Australia and the Americas. There is a good range of spirits and beers, too.

This list balances the great (and therefore most expensive) wines of the world with quality wines at affordable prices. It starts with a substantial list by the glass with Coravin extending its range of price points. Then there's a stunning list of amazing bottles and a romp around the world with most depth in France and Italy and eye-catching reds from the USA, Australia and New Zealand. While not a large list, there's plenty of quality.

Beverages are just as important as the food at Zi Yat Heen. Along with a carefully curated selection of wine, you can experience fine spirits, a stellar Chinese tea offering, and a fine selection of BaiJiu, HuangJiu and Sake. There is even a premium water menu complete with a water flight. Attention to detail is at the forefront of the selection, and care has been taken to present diners with a wide range of styles and origins. Those hunting for back vintages of premium wines will find much joy, especially if one is into the intricacies of seasonal variation.
